Students were visited in their local society and given information with various examples to the society, to be aware from unknown phone calls, messages, OTP messages, online shopping, and also regarding the use of financial transaction applications.

Information given by Students to the Society

Following are some sensible tips given by our students to the society to protect computer/mobile phones and personal data from cybercrime:

1. Keep software and operating system updated

Keeping your software and operating system up to date ensures that you benefit from the latest security patches to protect your computer.

2. Use anti-virus software and keep it updated

Using anti-virus or a comprehensive internet security solution like Premiumsa smart way to protect your system from attacks. Anti-virus software allows you to scan, detect and remove threats before they become a problem. Having this protection in place helps to protect your computer and your data from cybercrime, giving you piece of mind. Keep your antivirus updated to receive the best level of protection.

3. Use strong passwords

Be sure to use strong passwords that people will not guess and do not record them anywhere. Or use a reputable password manager to generate strong passwords randomly to make this easier.

4. Never open attachments in spam emails

A classic way that computers get infected by malware attacks and other forms of cybercrime is via email attachments in spam emails. Never open an attachment from a sender you do not know.

5. Do not click on links in spam emails or untrusted websites

Another way people become victims of cybercrime is by clicking on links in spam emails or other messages, or unfamiliar websites. Avoid doing this to stay safe online.

6. Do not give out personal information unless secure

Never give out personal data over the phone or via email unless you are completely sure the line or email is secure. Make certain that you are speaking to the person you think you are.

How to protect yourself against cybercrim

1. Data analytics

Data analytics may require a firm understanding of statistical software and spreadsheets. When working with data, you'll be expected to gather, quantify, and analyze data for a specific goal, such as increasing traffic to your website. You may be tasked with estimating trends or giving reports on current lead data using data software. Data skills are especially important in fields like digital marketing, project management, or data science—three examples of higher-paying data analysis jobs

2. Digital communication

Digital communication streamlines contact between employers and employees. Examples include Zoom, Microsoft Teams, and standard email platforms like Gmail, Outlook, or Yahoo. Your employer may use these platforms to contact you, and vice versa, through written, audio, or video format. By understanding how to use these types of resources, you will be able to communicate better with your employers, peers, clients, and stakeholders.

3. Microsoft Office Suite

Microsoft Office Suite is a client software collection containing applications such as Microsoft Word, PowerPoint, Teams, and Excel, among others. Employers may expect you to be proficient in Word for creating documents, PowerPoint for making presentations, Excel for organizing and analyzing data, and Outlook for emailing.

If your employer doesn't use Microsoft applications, they could probably use similar ones with different interfaces, such as Google Sheets (in lieu of Microsoft Excel) for more collaborative work. Regardless of the interface your employer uses, being proficient in word processors and spreadsheets can give you an advantage in your workplace or job hunt.

4. Social media

As we move into this digital era, the need for social media following is ever-increasing among companies. Organizations use various social media platforms to build and promote their brands as they attempt to build their clientele. To work with social media, you may need to be familiar with platforms like Instagram, Facebook, or Twitter and skills like marketing, data analysis, and copywriting.

Report on Add-On Course: "Machine Learning"

Academic Year 2023-24

It gives an immense pleasure to inform that Department of Computer Science of K.G.D.M. Arts, Commerce and Science College, Niphad has successfully conducted a Add-On course in "Machine Learning" In the academic year 2023-24 for the SYBSc(C.S.) students. Total 30 students from SYBSc(C.S.) of our college has participated in the course. Through this course students can communicate with each other in a better way and understand the new technology. Aim of this course is to enabling the student with basic knowledge on the techniques to build an intellectual machine for making decisions behalf of humans. This course covers the techniques on how to make learning by a model, how it can be evaluated, what are all different algorithms to construct a learning model.

All the faculty members of the department of Computer Science enthusiastically contributed in this course.
